Request for Classified Material

1. [REDACTED] in the early part of July requested that material he had in his possession while an employee of the IC Staff be forwarded to him at the State Department where he is a consultant in Ray Cline's office. His request was based on the impression that since he worked on and developed this material it was of a personal property nature. A list of the requested documents is attached. It was determined that the material could not be considered of a personal property nature and that it belonged to the Agency and that if [REDACTED] desired to have these documents in question he should make his request through Dr. Ray Cline, Director of INR, Department of State. A determination would then be made by this office as to whether the documents should be released.

Request for Building Pass

2. [REDACTED] requested a visitors badge for the purpose of conferring with IC Staff members and anticipated that he would have a lot of business with Mr. Clarke's office. Mr. Clarke responded that he had no immediate requirement to utilize [REDACTED] services. Based on this I have not processed a visitors badge for [REDACTED]

3. Telephone conversation this date with [REDACTED] reflects the following: He was informed that the documents in question would not be dispatched to him at the State Department and that it was not considered his personal property but property belonging to the Agency and that any request for these documents, classified or unclassified from this office, would have to be made through Dr. Cline's office. Upon receipt of this request from Dr. Cline a decision would be made as to whether we would release the documents.

4. With respect to his building pass, he was informed that we could not sponsor a visitors badge for him so that he could have access to the building. He informed me at this time that he had been told by Mr. Clarke that he had tried to get him a pass with [REDACTED] and [REDACTED] had turned him down.

1. Per your request, the Special Security Center reviewed documents requested by former CIA employee, [REDACTED]

[REDACTED] apparently feels that he would like to have this material in connection with his position as a consultant at the Department of State.

2. There are 46 identifiable items, including two notebooks as well as three newspaper clippings. With the exception of the newspaper clippings, it is our opinion that all material is classified. The classifications range from CONFIDENTIAL through TOP SECRET. Many items are marked or should be marked for protection within one or more of the compartmented intelligence control systems. For ease of review, we have attached a list of the material.

3. It is our opinion that none of this material can be considered the personal property of [REDACTED] with the exception of the newspaper clippings and a 24 January 1973 memorandum for the record from [REDACTED] in which he reviews two chapters from Mr. Schlesinger's book The Political Economy of National Security. It is the policy of the Agency to require all employees to surrender classified material on termination of employment. If [REDACTED] were not employed by another member of the intelligence community, there would be no further examination of the material or of options by which it could be made available to him.

4. In consideration of the fact that [redacted] is reportedly to be employed as an advisor to Dr. Ray Cline, Director, INR, Department of State, there may be a possibility that some of this material could be made available to [redacted]. This would require that Dr. Cline address a request for this material, identifying each document, to the Director of Central Intelligence. This request would have to state the advantages to the intelligence community or to the United States Intelligence Board of such an action. On receipt of such a request, the originator of each document would be contacted for his recommendation for or against release. Once these recommendations were compiled, they would be attached to the basic request and provided to the Director for his decision.
